The Virginia Small Business Partnership announces date of its 2011 Small Business Summit

Fairfax, VA- The Virginia Small Business Partnership announced earlier today its date for the 2011 Virginia Small Business Summit, which will take place on Friday, September 16, 2011 at the Mason Inn.

Attorney General Ken Cuccinelli has been invited to speak to small business leaders about his efforts to strike down the federal healthcare law. Terry McAuliffe, businessman and 2009 gubernatorial candidate has been invited to speak on what can be done to help grow Virginia small businesses across the Commonwealth.

The summit will focus on eight core issues that are important to the small business community: Healthcare, Public Private Partnerships, Procurement, Workforce Preparedness, Economic Development, Transportation, Small Business Banking, and Taxes/Fee's. These are working sessions, so expect to roll up your sleeves and help develop a policy roadmap for a strong and prosperous Virginia!

In addition, summit attendees will hear from experts regarding important business trends in 2011 including accessing capital, as well as strategies for growing your business in a challenging and competitive environment.

For more information about the summit, please contact Paul A. Miller at (703) 383-1330 or pmiller@mwcapitol.com. Also, please visit our website, www.vasbp.com for information on sponsorship and registration.
